PRESENTATIONS AT CONFERENCES & TRAINING SEMINARS

Wygant, S. A. (2026, April 24). Breaking the Cycle: Clinical and Legal Strategies for Parental Alienation [Conference presentation]. Children 4 Tomorrow's 7th Annual Symposium – “Beyond the Conflict: Digging Deeper into the Dynamics and Solutions. Understanding the Unseen. Healing What’s Broken.” This 1 CE/CLE presentation explained how parental alienation is defined and used by the courts and the scientific community as well as described what legal and clinical strategies are effective in identifying, treating, and preventing parental alienation.

Wygant, S. A. (2026, March 19). Assessing Allegations of Child Abuse in High Conflict Domestic Relations Cases [Conference presentation]. 41st Annual Symposium of the American College of Forensic Psychology, San Diego, CA. This 60-minute CE-accredited workshop summarized the relevant case-law and scientific literature concerning estimated prevalence rates of true and false claims of abuse in divorce litigation; Differentiated and applied the burdens of proof used by courts in determining abuse allegations; Operationalized the scientific method for data collection, data analysis, and hypothesis testing in the assessment of abuse allegations.

Wygant, S. A. (2025, November 16). When Should a Child’s Exposure to Parental Alienation Behaviors Require a Child Protective Response? Exploring the Parental Alienation Child Abuse Model. This live webinar presented to The Professional Alliance for Child Centered Safety \(PACCS\) explored the Parental Alienation Child Abuse Model (PACAM; Wygant, 2024) through analysis of trial court determinations of parental alienation as discussed in 1,351 Appellate Court decisions.

Wygant, S. A. (2025, September 12). Protective Parenting and Shared Parenting Models: Can They Co-Exist? [Conference Presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE-accredited workshop examined the intersection of protective parenting and shared parenting models in family law. Relevant case law, shared parenting statutes, and empirical research regarding domestic violence and parental alienation were explicated to clarify distinctions between true and false protective parenting claims, evaluate the role of shared parenting presumptions, and appraise child well-being outcomes in shared vs. lone custody arrangements. Highlighted practical implications for courts and practitioners in reconciling domestic violence, parental alienation, and statutory mandates within best-interest analyses.

Wygant, S. A. (2025, September 11). When Should a Child’s Exposure to Parental Alienation Behaviors Require a Child Protective Response? Exploring the Parental Alienation Child Abuse Model [Conference Presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Delivered this 1 hour research-based presentation on the Parental Alienation Child Abuse Model (PACAM), differentiating parental alienation (acts of maltreatment) from parental alienation syndrome (indicators of harm). Analyzed findings from over 1,200 appellate cases across 50 states, highlighting judicial use of PACAM, prevalence of Type II errors in custody determinations, and the need for earlier protective interventions. Learning objectives included distinguishing PA from PAS, identifying common alienating behaviors, recognizing when delayed intervention constitutes neglect, and applying psychological child abuse frameworks to parental alienation in legal contexts.

Wygant, S. A. (2025, June 20). Conducting scientifically informed child custody evaluations when parental alienation & domestic violence have been alleged [Live webinar training seminar presentation]. Michigan Psychological Association. This 2-hour CE-accredited workshop provided licensed psychologists and child custody evaluators with advanced training in applying the scientific method to high-conflict custody evaluations involving allegations of parental alienation (PA), parental alienation syndrome (PAS), and domestic violence (DV). The presentation emphasized hypothesis generation and testing, integration of peer-reviewed literature, and the use of structured data analysis in best interest of the child determinations. Participants learned to differentiate between the types of domestic violence, distinguish between PA and PAS, and identify common alienating behaviors.

Wygant, S. A. (2025, March 22). Assessing allegations of parental alienation child abuse during child custody evaluations [Conference presentation]. 40th Annual Symposium of the American College of Forensic Psychology, San Diego, CA. This 60-minute CE-accredited workshop presented a detailed explication of the Parental Alienation Child Abuse Model (PACAM) as a novel forensic framework for assessing parental alienation in the context of child custody evaluations. The presentation emphasized the importance of early child protective responses based on the child's exposure to alienating behaviors—rather than waiting for the emergence of parental alienation syndrome (PAS) symptomatology. Empirical support for PACAM was drawn from relevant peer-reviewed psychological literature and a case law analysis conducted by PsychLaw's 2024 parental alienation research project, which examined 1,351 appellate court decision where parental alienation was alleged. The session also explored how PACAM aligns with accepted standards of forensic practice and provides a structured basis for identifying psychological maltreatment in legal settings.

Wygant, S. A. (2025, March 14). When should a child's exposure to parental alienation behaviors require a child protective response? – Exploring the Parental Alienation Child Abuse Model [Conference presentation]. American Psychology–Law Society Annual Conference, San Juan, Puerto Rico. Mr. Wygant's Parental Alienation Child Abuse Model (PACAM), a novel conceptual and forensic framework that classifies parental alienation as a form of psychological maltreatment warranting early child protective intervention was explored in the context of relevant scientific literature and case law. The presentation distinguished between parental alienation behaviors as acts of maltreatment and parental alienation syndrome as indicators of harm, emphasized the risk of Type II errors in family court when relying solely on symptoms of parental alienation syndrome when assessing allegations of parental alienation, and presented judicial case law supporting protective responses based on exposure to alienating behaviors absent symptoms of PAS.

Wygant, S. A. (2024, October 5). When should a child's exposure to parental alienation behaviors require a child protective response? Exploring the Parental Alienation Child Abuse Model [Conference presentation]. Parental Alienation Consortium Legislative Summit, Southbury, CT, United States. Presented a novel child protection framework—the Parental Alienation Child Abuse Model (PACAM)—which conceptualizes parental alienation as a form of psychological maltreatment. The model emphasizes early intervention based on exposure to alienating behaviors, rather than the presence of symptoms of parental alienation syndrome. PACAM advocates for protective responses at the point of exposure and introduces a revised definition of parental alienation as any parental behaviors likely to cause harm to a child’s relationship with the other parent. It also classifies parental alienation as a subtype of psychological maltreatment, and parental alienation syndrome as a subtype of parental alienation.

Wygant, S. A. (2024, April 26). Who needs to be trained in parental alienation and why? [Keynote presentation, live webinar, 1.5 CEUs & 1.5 CLEs]. Children 4 Tomorrow 5th Annual Symposium: An Inside Look at Parental Alienation—What We Need to Know About Psychological Child Abuse, a.k.a. Parental Alienation. Delivered a 90-minute keynote presentation highlighting the critical training needs of judges, attorneys, mental health professionals, child protection workers, and forensic interviewers in identifying and responding to parental alienation as a form of psychological child abuse. The presentation addressed diagnostic challenges, differentiated subtypes of psychological maltreatment, and examined Michigan trial and appellate court rulings on parental alienation from 1996 to 2024. Evidence-based strategies for continuing education and legal training were presented to promote the early identification, prevention, and intervention of parental alienation child abuse in forensic and legal contexts.

Wygant, S. A. (2023, October 9-10). [Child Abuse 10-Hour Training Seminar \[Live Webinar\]](#). Developed, produced, and presented a 10-hour (10 CEUs) training seminar for Child Legal Representatives (CLRs), Child and Family Investigators (CFIs), and Parental Responsibilities Evaluators (PREs) to satisfy the requirements for child abuse training under Colo. Rev. Stat. § 14-10-127.5 as amended by HB 23-1178. This 10-hour didactic, immersive, and experiential training seminar unpacked and explicated the extant scientific literature and relevant Federal and Colorado statutes concerning:

1. The History of Child Welfare
2. Child Abuse and Neglect Conceptualizations

Presentation at the 3rd Annual Psi Chi Research Symposium, The Intersection of Psychology and Neuroscience held at the Michigan School of Psychology, Farmington Hills, Michigan June 16, 2017. Presented a one-hour didactic workshop on the latest scientific research studies into how false memories are induced in animals and human beings.

CONFERENCES, WEBINARS, & PRESENTATIONS ATTENDED

Olson, S. (2026, March 21). Violence risk assessments [Conference presentation]. 41st Annual Symposium of the American College of Forensic Psychology, San Diego, CA. 1-hour (CE) workshop that provided an overview of violence risk assessment practices across forensic settings. The presentation reviewed commonly used risk assessment instruments and examined the strengths and limitations of structured tools versus clinical judgment. It also addressed common misconceptions about violence risk assessment and outlined best practices for formulating opinions that directly answer referral questions in forensic evaluations.

Philipsborn, J. (2026, March 20). Expert opinion testimony: Suggestions on preparation, report writing, and interactions with counsel [Conference presentation]. 41st Annual Symposium of the American College of Forensic Psychology, San Diego, CA. 1-hour (CE) workshop that examined the legal standards governing admissibility of expert testimony and emphasized key components of effective forensic reports that distinguish reliable from unreliable opinions.

Nelson, S. (2026, March 20). Understanding cognitive bias in professional judgment [Conference presentation]. 41st Annual Symposium of the American College of Forensic Psychology, San Diego, CA. 1-hour (CE) workshop that examined how common cognitive biases affect forensic and clinical decision-making and presented evidence-based strategies to improve diagnostic reasoning, reduce bias, and enhance the accuracy and reliability of professional judgments.

Olson, S. (2026, March 19). Malingering: How our understanding has changed over time. 41st Annual Symposium of the American College of Forensic Psychology, San Diego, CA. This 1-hour (CE) workshop examined the evolution of conceptualizations and assessment of malingering in forensic psychology, highlighting advances in detection methods, shifts in diagnostic frameworks, and the impact of research on clinical and legal decision-making. The presentation emphasized contemporary approaches to distinguishing feigned from genuine symptoms and the implications for forensic evaluations.

Rawles, P. (2026, January 7). Parenting capacity evaluations in protective matters: best practices, ethics, and applications. 5-hour Workshop Presented at the Saybrook University Residential Learning Conference, Universal City, California.

Rawles, P. (2026, January 6). Treating guilt and shame resulting from trauma and moral injury. 5-hour Workshop Presented at the Saybrook University Residential Learning Conference, Universal City, California.

Blotcky, A. (2025, September 12). Expert testimony in PA cases: Four scenarios that can be successful [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined four distinct roles for mental health experts in parental alienation cases—custody evaluator, retained expert, attorney consultant, and blind expert—highlighting their respective functions, strategic considerations, and effectiveness in supporting court decision-making.

Gentile, G. (2025, September 12). The REVIVE method: Restoring relationships and reversing parental alienation, even in severe cases without judicial intervention [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation introduced the REVIVE Method as an approach to restoring parent-child relationships in parental alienation cases, including severe presentations, without reliance on judicial intervention.

Jones, M. (2025, September 12). Successes and failures of reunification therapy: Lessons to be learned [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined the effectiveness of reunification therapy in parental alienation cases, identifying key factors influencing outcomes—including therapist expertise, family engagement, interdisciplinary collaboration, and judicial support—while highlighting common barriers and offering practical strategies to improve intervention success in high-conflict cases.

Koppejan, H. (2025, September 12). Family violence, parental alienation and co-parenting [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined the intersection of family violence allegations and parental alienation, illustrating through a case study how misattributed abuse claims and coercive control can disrupt parent-child relationships and influence clinical and judicial decision-making.

Landikusic, L. (2025, September 12). The Empowerment Collaborative co-parenting project: A hybrid, solution-focused clinical, mediative, protective, and legal intervention model to identify, assess, and treat parental alienation abuse and/or crimes. [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation introduced a trauma-informed, non-litigious intervention model integrating clinical, mediative, and legal strategies to address parental alienation, highlighting structured tools and approaches that support restoration of parent-child contact, reduce harmful behaviors, and promote effective co-parenting practices.

Reay, K. (2025, September 12). Evaluating the impact of the Family Reflections Reunification Program on severely alienated children and their families [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined outcome data from an intensive, evidence-based reunification program for severe parental alienation cases, highlighting factors associated with successful restoration of parent-child relationships, improvements in child functioning, and implications for clinical practice and policy.

Steinberg, L. (2025, September 12). Debunking myths: The efficacy of parental alienation reunification therapy [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined the development and effectiveness of reunification therapy in parental alienation cases, reviewing its historical evolution, evidence-based practices, and documented outcomes to address misconceptions and underscore the need for specialized clinical intervention.

Alvarez, M., Rothfus, L., & Turner, C. (2025, September 11). Parental alienation: Missed judicial and clinical opportunities in a real case study [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined how gaps in judicial and clinical understanding of parental alienation can lead to missed early warning signs, allowing initially mild cases of parental alienation to escalate into severe parental alienation due to missteps in court and clinical intervention as illustrated in a prolonged case in which the child became completely alienated from one of their parents.

Bala, N. (2025, September 11). Parental alienation – Junk science or child abuse? A question for politicians, judges or psychologists? [Conference Presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined how courts and clinicians should manage parental alienation cases with care by supporting constructive parental behavior when possible, while recognizing that in severe cases suspending contact with a parent may be necessary to protect the child.

Flood, R., & Flood, Z. (2025, September 11). The collateral damage of parental alienation: High-risk dilemmas for clinicians [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined the complex ethical, clinical, and systemic challenges faced by targeted parents and professionals in parental alienation cases, including high-conflict dynamics, competing pressures within court-involved work, and the limitations of accessible forensic resources, highlighting how clinical decisions may be misused within adversarial legal contexts.

Gunsberg, L., & Trager, J. (2025, September 11). The Trager-Gunsberg multidisciplinary fast-track legal, treatment and training model for a parental alienation court within the family court [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation proposed a multidisciplinary, team-based court model designed to expedite parental alienation cases through early identification, specialized judicial oversight, and coordinated clinical and legal intervention, with the goal of preventing the progression and entrenchment of parental alienation over time.

Harman, J., Warshak, R., Sharples, A., & Marsden, J. (2025, September 11). Parental alienating behaviors: Ignore at children's peril [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined empirical findings from a study of 799 participants assessing the effects of parental alienating behaviors, demonstrating that while backlash effects may occur in non-alienated individuals, children with a history of parental alienation show more complex response patterns, underscoring the significant and varied psychological impact of such behaviors.

Joshi, A., & Jon Van Allsburg (2025, September 11). Proving alienation without experts: Storytelling in the courtroom [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined how courts can make parental alienation findings without expert testimony, emphasizing the role of persuasive fact-based storytelling and credible lay witness narratives in effectively presenting these complex cases.

Marsden, J. (2025, September 11). The scientific rigor of parental alienation studies: A quality assessment of the peer reviewed research [Conference presentation]. The 7th

International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined the methodological quality of 155 empirical parental alienation studies using the Mixed Methods Appraisal Tool (MMAT), finding consistently high scientific rigor across the literature and addressing criticisms that parental alienation research lacks validity, with implications for courts and policy decision-making.

Marsden, J. (2025, September 11). Sibling rejection in parental alienation: Exploring dynamics, contributing factors, and impacts [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined the phenomenon of rejection in cases of parental alienation, exploring how parental alienating behaviors, loyalty conflicts, parental manipulation, and self-motivated reactions among siblings contribute to rejection. The presented explored the emotional and relational toll on rejected siblings, such as isolation and long-term psychological harm.

Paquin-Boudreau, A., Harman, J., & Ludmer, B. (2025, September 11). Trajectories of families in parental alienation cases in Canadian courts [Conference presentation]. The 7th International Conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This 1-hour CE presentation examined longitudinal patterns in 44 Canadian family court cases with confirmed parental alienation dynamics, analyzing multiple decisions per family over time to understand the evolution of parental alienation, judicial responses to abuse allegations, and post-diagnosis family outcomes, highlighting the utility of the construct for guiding intervention.

In Association of Family and Conciliation Courts \(AFCC\) Special Webinar Series on Parent-Child Contact Problems. Participated in this live one-hour webinar concerning the presenters' theory of how alienation proponents utilize rhetorical strategies which obfuscate rather than advance the theory and practice of parental alienation assessment. Presenters discussed credible claims of alienating behaviors and invalid applications of the alienation label.

Warshak, R. A. (2020, June 11). Parental Alienation: False Positives and Myriad Concerns [Live Continuing Education Webinar]. In Association of Family and Conciliation Courts \(AFCC\) Special Webinar Series on Parent-Child Contact Problems. Participated in this live one-hour webinar concerning the complex issue of false positive identifications—mistakenly concluding that a child is alienated and that a parent has engaged in a campaign of alienating behaviors. The presenter discussed the seven criteria that distinguish negative behaviors of moderately or severely alienated children from negative behaviors that do not indicate parental alienation as well as the importance of attending to the nuances of a parent's alienating behaviors and to judgment biases that can lead to faulty conclusions.

Saini, M., Platt, S., & Laajasalo, T. (2020, June 9). Allegations of Child Abuse During Child Custody Disputes [Live Continuing Education Webinar]. In Association of Family and Conciliation Courts \(AFCC\) Special Webinar Series on Parent-Child Contact Problems. Participated in this live one-hour webinar concerning the history and current understanding of child abuse allegations within the context of child custody disputes as well as the connections of fabricated allegations to the theory of alienation and the role of gatekeeping.

Deutsch, R., Drozd, L., & Ajoku, C. (2020, June 4). Trauma-Informed Interventions in Parent-Child Contact Cases [Live Continuing Education Webinar]. In Association of Family and Conciliation Courts \(AFCC\) Special Webinar Series on Parent-Child Contact Problems. Participated in this live one-hour webinar concerning parent-child contact problems that may arise in the context of high conflict separation/divorce dynamics between parents. Presenters discussed the distinction between the stressful circumstances that may arise as a result of high interparental conflict and pulls for alignment from a parent, and the real or perceived trauma as a factor which contributes to resistance or refusal of a child to have contact with a parent.

Bailey, R., & Davis, F. (2020, June 2). Polyvagal Theory in the Courtroom and Beyond [Live Continuing Education Webinar]. In Association of Family and Conciliation Courts \(AFCC\) Special Webinar Series on Parent-Child Contact Problems. Bernet, W., Lorandos, D., & Baker, A. J. L. (2019, November 1). Research that Supports Parental Alienation. AFCC Fall Conference: Integrating Research into Practice and Police: The Impact on Families and Children. Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Attended this 90-minute presentation on two lines of research regarding parental alienation. The first line of research is the use of the psychological tests (such as the Parental Acceptance-Rejection Questionnaire and the Bene-Anthony Family Relations Test), which measure the pathological defense mechanism of splitting, to distinguish severely alienated children from nonalienated children. The second is the analysis of hundreds of legal opinions, which demonstrate how trial and appellate courts in the US have found testimony regarding parental alienation to be material, probative, relevant, and admissible.

Droz, L., & Saini, M. (2019, November 1). Selection Bias in Family Law Research: Reliability at the Cost of Diversity. AFCC Fall Conference: Integrating Research into Practice and Police: The Impact on Families and Children. Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Attended this 90-minute presentation on ways to improve the quality and applicability of social science research within family law. This workshop explored the benefits and risks of stringent criteria for the inclusion of study participants, offered examples within the context of alienation and intimate partner violence, and discussed implications for using empirical evidence in the courtroom.

Maas, P., & Knop, J. A. (2019, October 30). History of Michigan's Forensic Interviewing Protocol [Video on Demand]. Michigan Justice Institute.
